Based on everything we've discussed, the mentor registration process should do more than create an account. It should help the platform determine:

- Is this person qualified to be a mentor?
- Which entrepreneurs are they best suited to mentor?
- Which programme(s) should they support (Incubation, Acceleration, or both)?
- What industries and business stages match their expertise?
- What is their availability and mentoring style?
- What level of experience do they bring?
- What training or orientation might they need?

This allows the system to automatically match mentors with entrepreneurs based on business stage, industry, goals, challenges, language, location, and availability.
